Basic Functions of Squirrel Eyes

Before we begin, we at Gray Technical LLC would like to inform you that Squirrel Eyes does not store or transmit any information. Gray Technical will only ask for your information during purchase, and never ask again. We must state this because Squirrel Eyes does come with its own basic internet browser. Please keep in mind that the installed browser is NOT your default browser and does NOT come with any protection. We are Gray Technical LLC are not responsible for any harm that may come to your computer during the use of this program. If you are using the internet browser and your information is requested DO NOT provide ANY information.

With that out of the way, we can now talk about the basic functions of Squirrel Eyes.

Squirrel Eyes was built as a computer monitoring system design to allow the user to see exactly all the processes and resource pulls being used by a program or game. This is actually more difficult than it sounds. Why? Because every program opens differently, and every program is made to have different priorities. For example, video games are made to always be the topmost item on the screen, and most of the time, the only item shown on the screen. Because of these complexities Squirrel Eyes is not able to open every single application inside of itself. However this doesn't mean that Squirrel Eyes cannot monitor the said program.

Even if a program cannot open inside Squirrel Eyes, you can still monitor it. Squirrel Eyes is designed to take all processes and monitor all activity. With the game mode, even if it does not open inside Squirrel Eyes you can still open the game in a 'non-fullscreen' mode with Squirrel Eyes and monitor it like you would normally.

So while Yes, Squirrel Eyes cannot open everything inside of itself, it can still provide all the functions and features with any program running inside or out.

Squirrel Eyes has multiple modes as well. The first mode that you see when opening is called 'Open Mode', and is the default window. If you would like to see the other modes (Process Mode or Overlay Mode) you can click the 'Modes' menu item and select the desired mode. Each mode, while slightly different, offers many of the same features, but are still different enough to be classified in 'Modes'.

If you ever need any help while running Squirrel Eyes please first review the FAQs in 'Help' and 'FAQ', manual if question is not in FAQ, and if your question is still not clear, please email our support.

Opening

Programs

Programs in Squirrel Eyes are very easy to open. Simply go to ‘File’ > ‘Open’ and ‘Program’, and then select the desired program to open.

If the program has a Loader (a window before the main window is opened) then you might need to change the amount of delay time while opening the program. To do this change the ‘Wait ____ Second(s) for program to load’ option at the top right to a however many seconds it takes to load the program. 10 seconds is usually a good lap of time for loading programs.

If the program opens in fullscreen mode as a default, please select the ‘Open’ > ‘Game’ and select ‘Computability Mode’.

If the program still does not load inside of Squirrel Eyes then it is more than likely that the structure of the program is something that Squirrel Eyes cannot handle. However as stated before, even if Squirrel Eyes cannot open the program inside of itself you can still monitor it. Squirrel Eyes will monitor ALL processes and resource pulls that happen regardless if it is inside or out.

Opening

Emulator

Emulators in Squirrel Eyes are very easy to open. Simply go to 'File' > 'Open' and 'Emulator', and then select the desired emulator to open.

If the emulator has a Loader (a window before the main window is opened) then you might need to change the amount of delay time while opening the emulator. To do this change the 'Wait ____ Second(s) for program to load' option at the top right to a however many seconds it takes to load the emulator. 10 seconds is usually a good lap of time for loading emulators.

If the emulator opens in fullscreen mode as a default, please select the 'Open' > 'Game' and select 'Computability Mode'.

If the emulator still does not load inside of Squirrel Eyes then it is more than likely that the structure of the emulator is something that Squirrel Eyes cannot handle. However as stated before, even if Squirrel Eyes cannot open the emulator inside of itself you can still monitor it. Squirrel Eyes will monitor ALL processes and resource pulls that happen regardless if it is inside or out.

Opening

Game

Games in Squirrel Eyes can be a little tricky to open. Some games open in a window, others open in Fullscreen Mode and some open with a Loader (a sub program used to open the game in a series of locations).

If a game opens natively in window then you can choose 'Open' > 'Game' > and 'No Window'. This will allow the game to open as normal. If the game is in a window without a Loader then Squirrel Eyes should be able to open the game inside itself.

If the game opens in Fullscreen Mode then you have a couple options.

- Basic Window mode will open the game with the standard window settings (which will open in a basic window)
- Compatible Window will open the game in the Windows default viewer (the default window options for a Windows machine)
- Extended Window will open the game in an elevated priority window.

For most games the standard 'Compatible Window' mode will suffice. Use Basic if it is an older video game and Extended Window if none of the others open the game out of full screen mode.

If the game has a Loader (a window before the main window is opened) then you might need to change the amount of delay time while opening the game. To do this change the 'Wait ____ Second(s) for program to load' option at the top right to a however many seconds it takes to load the game. 10 seconds is usually a good lap of time for loading games.

If the game still does not load inside of Squirrel Eyes then it is more than likely that the structure of the game is something that Squirrel Eyes cannot handle. However as stated before, even if Squirrel Eyes cannot open the program inside of itself you can still monitor it. Squirrel Eyes will monitor ALL processes and resource pulls that happen regardless if it is inside or out.

Opening

Web Browser

Opening a web browser is very easy. Simply go to ‘File’ > ‘Open’ > ‘Web Browser’ and a web browser should open inside of Squirrel Eyes.

Please keep in mind that this web browser does not come with any anit virus, firewall, pop up blocker, ad blocker, flash, swf or java. This is a very simple web browser that was designed to function as the bare minimum requirements for the internet.

It should also be noted that Gray Technical will NEVER ask for any of your information. If the web browser request information from you DO NOT enter any information in. Squirrel Eyes is a completely contained program, which means that it will never transmit any information outside of your computer. This does not prevent someone from tapping into your computer though.

Use this web browser ONLY for testing purposes and NEVER give any of your information to anyone.
